Many years ago, there was a young girl named Pepsy, who didn't like going out because she didn't look beautiful. She hated to hear people say, "Pepsy is not beautiful."

But there were times when she had to go out shopping. She was unhappy and sometimes even angry at people who thought she was not pretty.

One night, a strange old woman came to Pepsy's house. She said to Pepsy, "My child, let me help you. Put this magic flower in your hair, and you'll become beautiful."

Pepsy did what the old woman said. Something strange happened. She became beautiful! Pepsy was surprised to see herself so wonderful in the mirror. She ran happily out of her house. She walked on the street and smiled at everyone who looked at her. She became very friendly and nice, very different from what she was before. Almost all the people said, "Pepsy is so great today!"

Finally, Pepsy returned to her home. But before she entered the house, she saw the magic flower on the ground. She left the flower there before she hurried out. She didn't wear it when walking on the street!

Recycling is very important. It is one way to reduce the waste. To keep waste out of our earth, we should try hard to do recycling. If there is too much trash on earth, our earth will be seriously polluted. In the near future, your house will be built on the land once full of trash. It's too dangerous. Then, recycling means we can reuse things that are thought to be littered. Don't throw away any trash easily. Using more things means getting our earth more polluted. By the way, recycling can save more money. If you make the number of trash down, you can pay less money to our government. Do it now or never!

13. What's the best title for the reading?

- A. How to Keep Our Home Clean?
- B. Stop Polluting Our Earth by Recycling.
- C. Pollution People Make to the Earth.

I once loved the wind. I believed it was a gentle friend singing music in the trees. Until one summer day a heavy wind almost destroyed our town. Everyone knew it was coming that day, but I was still surprised when I saw the big moving fast clouds. My mother cried loudly for me to go downstairs, just as my father pushed me to the ground. Suddenly, the window broke into pieces of glass. I climbed slowly to the table where my sister hid under. We watched our father board up the window with pieces of wood and clean up the broken glass. His hands and face were bloody red because they were cut by the broken glass. I knew I would never love the wind again.

15. In line 2, what does the word "destroyed" mean?

- A. hurt
- B. hung things under the sun
- C. washed clean
- D. treated others well

16. Which sentence is true?

- A. The writer never loved the wind.
- B. Only the writer didn't know that the heavy wind would come that day.
- C. The father used pieces of wood to cover the window after it was broken by the wind.
- D. The mother climbed around the house to clean up the broken glass.

Once upon a time, the gods Zeus and Hermes were visiting a foreign land. They pretended to be common, so no one knew that they were gods. They were tired and hungry when they arrived in one town, but they could find no place to eat and rest. No one would show hospitality to them. It was late at night, and they finally saw the humble cottage of an old couple named Baucis and Philemon.

Baucis was a hospitable woman who prepared what little food she had right away for the two guests. Philemon prepared a place for the guests to sit, and he put his last log on the fire so that they would be comfortable. Philemon also brought them warm water so they could wash themselves. He even brought out the last of the wine to serve the guests. When the gods poured out the wine to serve themselves, it replenished itself so that it was never used up. When this happened, the old couple was terrified because they knew that these two visitors must be gods. Philemon went out to kill the old goose to serve them, but the goose flew away before he could catch it. The gods said, "Don't kill the goose for us. You have already shown great hospitality to us. For this, you will be rewarded." The gods then destroyed the entire town for their rude behavior and changed the poor home of Baucis and Philemon into a beautiful palace.

The gods asked the couple what else they could do for them. The devoted couple asked that when it was their time to die, could they die together because neither wanted to live without the other. Their wish was granted. When they had lived to a very old age, it was time for their deaths. They were both turned into trees. The two trees still stand next to each other with their branches entwined.

17. Why did Zeus and Hermes come down to the earth?

- A. To catch and punish evil people
- C. To visit Baucis and Philemon.

B. To test humans

D. To destroy the town with rude people

18. What does the word "hospitality" mean?

- A. Wealth and fame
- C. Rude behavior

B. House or cottage

D. Warm and friendly welcome

19. Why did the gods destroy the town?

- A. Because they were too greedy.
- B. Because they were indifferent to strangers.
- C. Because they didn't recognize the gods at first sight.
- D. Because they didn't worship the gods regularly.

20. What was the old couple's last wish?

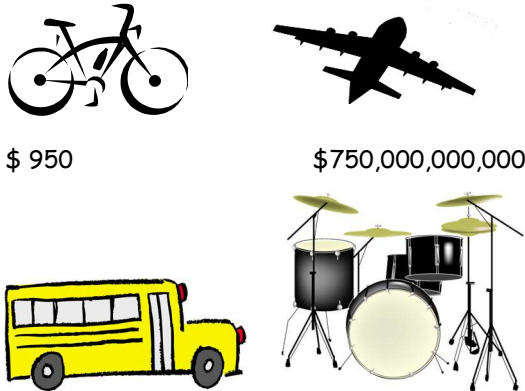

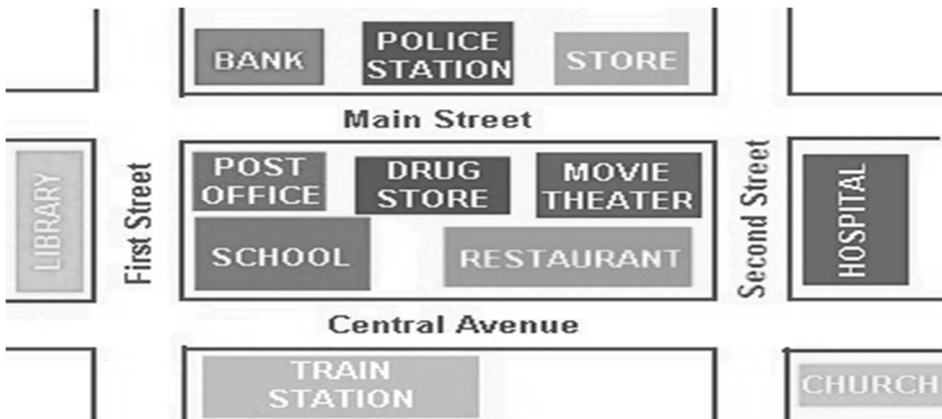

- A. They wanted to be together forever.
- B. They wanted to become trees after they died.
- C. They wished to go to Heaven and lived with the gods.
- D. They hoped they would be remembered forever.
